

Designer wins prestigious award

Lincolnshire and London based interior design studio, Sophie Peckett Design, who has featured several times in this magazine, has won Best Interior Design for a Private Residence in the East Midlands at the prestigious UK Property Awards in London.

MD Sophie Peckett received the award at the London Marriott Hotel , Grosvenor Square for the studio's work to transform the interior of a Grade II listed manor house near Tealby, Lincolnshire.

The very best developments, architecture and interior design from across the entire United Kingdom were celebrated at the awards ceremony. Judging was carried out through a meticulous process involving a panel of over 60 experts covering every aspect of the property business.

“We are absolutely thrilled to have won this fantastic award from such a prestigious panel of judges,” comments Sophie. “We work on many outstanding projects each year both in the UK and abroad and we are delighted that the creativity and talent of the entire team have been recognised,” she added.

The winning project featured bespoke design, antiques and luxury materials with a bold colour palette and included hall, drawing room, family room, kitchen, study, bedrooms and bathrooms.

The UK Property Awards, combined with the other regional awards' programmes for Arabia, Asia Pacific, Africa, Europe and the Americas, form the globally renowned International Property Awards. They are the world's most prestigious property competition and cover residential as well as commercial categories.
